Menaces Four With Gun In Dairy Store Robbery

'PAPER BAG' BANDIT GETS $38 IN CASH

Waves Gun at Clerk, Orders Him to Hurry Up and Put Money In Sack.

REVOLVER SHAKES IN HAND

Gunman Has Face Covered With 'Kerchief In Robbing Main Isaly Store.

A masked and armed "paper bag" bandit last night held up and robbed the main store of the Isaly dairy company of $38 while he held four persons at bay with a nickel-plated revolver.

The gunman, with a handkerchief tied over his face and cap pulled low over his eyes, entered the store, located across the street from the Isaly office building on North Franklin avenue at 10:15.

"Put 'er in here and hurry up," he ordered Fred Popp, a clerk, as he thrust a brown paper sack over the counter.

Orders Clerk to Hurry.

"I started dropping the quarters and half dollars from the cash drawer into the bag, but I guess I wasn't doing it fast enough," Popp related today, "because he waved his gun and repeated, 'put 'er in there and hurry up.'

"I asked him how much he wanted and that time he snarled, 'all of it and hurry up.'

"He was shaking a little, so I put the $38 that was in the drawer into the sack and handed it over to him," Popp said.

Popp said that while he was putting the money in the sack, the gunman held two other employes and a customer at bay with the gun.

When the bandit had taken the sack, he asked what was under the counter and if there was any cash hidden there, Popp told police. When informed that he had it all, he walked hastily from the store and ran east on Waring avenue

Says 'Don't Raise Your Hands.'

Robert Croll, R. D. 6, Mansfield, another clerk stood at the point of the gun near Popp behind the counter. The other employes, T. T. Brenman and A. B. Swan, Lucas, who were sitting in chairs talking, were told to stay where they were and not raise their hands.

"I'm glad they didn't move because I was afraid of what might happen if they did," Popp said. "The man was shaking and I was afraid that the gun might go off."

As the gunman went out the door, Popp said he hurried to the telephone next door and called police.

TOKENS IN USE

New Fare Plan In Effect on Buses Today.

Bright new bus fare tokens jingled in the pockets of Mansfield bus riders today as the new fare plan was put in effect by the Mansfield Rapid Transit company.

The tokens, the first intermediate fare instituted here since 1928, are being sold at the rate of five for 35 cents. Cash fares will remain at the same price, 10 cents. Weekly passes, good for any number of rides, at $1, and school passes will still be available at the same prices.

The small metal disk tokens, slightly smaller than dimes can be purchased from bus operators on all lines. About 2,500 of them were distributed to bus operators.

VOTES DIVIDEND

Westinghouse Pays $2 a Share on Both Common, Preferred.

Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing company today declared a $2 dividend on both the common and participating preferred stocks, both payable Dec. 21 to stockholders of record Dec. 7, United Press dispatches from New York said.

This brings total dividends paid or declared so far this year each on the common stock and participating preferred stock to $6 a share. Last year disbursements of $5.50 each were made on the issues.

Pastor Guilty

—Central Press Photo.

Shown above is Rev. C. E. Newton, 51, who was convicted of first degree murder today by a jury in Pittsfield, Ill. The jury deliberated nearly seven hours and its verdict carried a penalty of life imprisonment. The minister was found guilty of the hammer murder of Mrs. Dennis Kelly, 45, a church worker.

MINISTER GETS LIFE SENTENCE

Killer of Church Woman Found Guilty; 'I'm Not Surprised,' Defendant Declares.

PITTSFIELD, Ill. —(AP)— The Rev. C. E. Newton was convicted today of slaying a loyal church worker and the jury fixed his punishment at life imprisonment.

A verdict was reached in six hours and 52 minutes.

The Missouri country preacher had pleaded he was the victim of circumstances in the brutal hammer-slaying last July of Mrs. Dennis Kelly, 45-year-old mother of Paris, Mo.

"I'm not surprised at the verdict because of prejudice in this case," said the sleepy-eyed pastor calmly when his fate was declared long before dawn.

"I intend to ask for a new trial. I will carry this to a higher court if necessary."

Then the 51-year-old minister conferred briefly with Defense Attorney Martin Turner and was taken back to jail unmanacled, as usual.

Circuit Judge A. Clay Williams, hurriedly summoned from his home when the jury announced it had a verdict at 1:18 a. m. (CST), did not set a time for formal sentencing but indicated it would be today.

Turned declared "this man is innocent of any crime; I'm sure of that in my own mind."

Merrill Johnston, youthful state's attorney who read to the jury Newton's purported "confession" to slaying his former Sunday school teacher "with something, I think a hammer," the night of last July 12, said "I'm well satisfied with the decision."

SPUR HUNT FOR MISSING OHIOAN

Officers Search for Ex-Banker; Family Offers Reward.

McCONNELLSVILLE — (AP) — Sheriff's officers and police were spurred in their search today for Robert Miller, 66-year-old former bank president, by a reward of $100.

B. O. Roberts, son-in-law of the former Citizens National bank official, announced the family had offered the reward for any information on the "exact" whereabouts, dead or alive, of the aged man who was last seen purchasing a magazine on Nov. 16.

Sheriff L. B. Adrean of Morgan county, who said Miller was in moderate circumstances, said kidnapers might be involved in the case, though no ransom demands had been received.

GOLD IN TURKEY

Butcher Says He 'Panned' $2 In 'Dust' From Gizzard.

BOISE, Ida. —(U.P.)— A "gold rush" began today among Thanksgiving turkeys.

Art Warren, meat market manager, started it by reporting he had "panned" $2 in gold from the gizzard of a turkey brought from a farm near the Gold Fork Place mining district. Turkeys from the farm were at a premium.

SEC DEMANDS 'SHAKE-UP' IN WALL STREET

Warns Stock Exchange It'll Clean House If Steps To Stabilize Aren't Rushed.

TRADERS STUDY THREAT

Hint They'll Seek Court Test If Federal Regulations Are Extended.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The securities commission bluntly told the New York Stock exchange today to get ready for a federal housecleaning unless Wall streeters themselves will stabilize the market.

Chairman W. C. Douglas of the commission accused professional traders of accentuating the ups and downs of the securities market. He called on them to surrender their control of the exchange to persons "who have a clearer public responsibility."

Comes As Surprise.

Douglas' "—or else" statement surprised Wall Street operators, many of whom interpreted it as "an open declaration of war" and an attempt to place responsibility for market breaks on stock exchange members.

They declared it would mean an end to exchange-commission relations as they had existed recently—outwardly friendly and highlighted by only occasional criticisms.

The announcement came a few minutes after President Roosevelt told reporters that the administration and utility operators, who have been at odds for five years, were making progress toward an understanding. If it is reached, a vast utility construction program probably would result.

Douglas, who became head of the SEC in September, said neither the stock exchanges nor the commission should interfere with normal market fluctuations, but added:

Joint Responsibility?

"It may be that we jointly have some responsibility to insulate the economic life and business morale of the nation against the severity of the shocks."

On Wall Street and in other exchanges, there were hints that Douglas' ultimatum meant the end of brokers' willingness to cooperate further with the SEC in its efforts to achieve "reform" by regulation.

FACING QUIZ

Ex-Board Members Must Tell About Missing Files.

COLUMBUS—(AP)— Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy today summoned Charles Haslop, Charles Sharp and William A. Cupp, former members of the Ohio parole board, and Miss Louise Busic, board stenographer, to appear before the special grand jury investigating the state's parole system.

Duffy said he was interested in learning what happened to files of the parole board which he said were missing when his investigators inquired for them. Later they were placed back in the records, he said.

"We are progressing," the attorney general asserted as the probe entered its third day.

Goodbye Mr. Gobbler--It's Nice to Have Known You!

He Winds Up on Festive Board Tomorrow as Mansfield Joins In 314th Observance of Thanksgiving.

It was the end today for Mr. Turkey Gobbler—the bitter end.

After months of coddling and nursing so he could grow into a nice robust bird—he's going to wind up on the festive board tomorrow as Mansfield joins the nation in the 314th observance of Thanksgiving—a day set aside for prayer and thanks by the Pilgrims.

It's an occasion when feasting in particular seems to be the order of the day. Throughout the city tomorrow in private homes, restaurants, and in institutions Thanksgiving dinners, some elaborate and some simple, will be served in celebration of the day and its meaning

In general Mr. and Mrs. Public will eat and eat until they can eat no more.

Mansfield will not observe this oldest of American holidays by feasting alone. There will be services at churches.

Union services will be held at St. Luke's Lutheran, First Presbyterian, and the Central Methodist churches, while St. John's Evangelical, South Main Evangelical, and the First Lutheran churches will have their own services.

Six congregations will unite for

BREAKING UP

Warmer Tonight, Says Forecast; Holiday to Be Damp.

The winter of the past few days is about to break up, today's weather forecast indicated.

The mercury got down to 15 above again last night, but the forecast said it would be "fair and warmer" tonight, while Thursday would be cloudy, with occasional rain—not a very pleasant holiday forecast, at that.

Yesterday's high was 38, and at noon today the mercury was back at that point.

Ancestor of Mansfielder Issued First Printed Thanksgiving Proclamation

Posted In 1676, It Gave Thanks for Victory Over Savages.

Thanksgiving day is something more than a turkey-and-cranberries event for Earl B. Rawson, 527 Forest avenue, for it was one of his long-ago grandfathers who issued the first Thanksgiving proclamation printed in America.

His grandsire, nine generations removed, was Edward Rawson, secretary of the Colony of Massachusetts Bay who took office in 1650 and remained at that post for 36 years. His home in Newburyport, Mass., has been preserved, and is distinguished by a marker, giving information to tourists. The home, one of the historical points in the New England states, is maintained by the Rawson association, of which H. Lyman Rawson, cousin of the Mansfield man, is secretary.

It was in 1676 that Edward Rawson issued the first Thanksgiving proclamation at Charlestown, Mass., which was printed. A day of Thanksgiving had been celebrated in different colonial localities for years before that, but in 1676 it was decided that an official proclamation should be issued to the people, and it was carefully printed by hand and placed in the public square at Charlestown, and in other settlements of the Bay colony.

This first printed proclamation was issued in June and gave thanks for victory over the wilderness and savages, rather than for the successful harvesting of crops, as the colonists had been doing for years before that date. The document, which has been preserved, is in old English printing and the now quaint rhetoric of that century.

It began: "The Holy God having by a long and Continued Series of his Afflictive dispensations in or by the present War with the Heathen Nations of Land, written and besought to Call, 47, of Shelby, who was crushed to death while at work on the Bellville sewage project yesterday. The union is comprised of WPA workers.

The demand was made in a telegram to Dr. Carl Watson, Ohio WPA administrator and was sent last night following a special meeting of about 50 WPA employes

SHIP SENDS OUT DISTRESS CALLS

British Steamer Reports Boat Leaking After Collision.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Distress signals received today by Mackay radio from the British steamship Nollington Court reported the ship was listing ten degrees to port and requested all ships in the vicinity to stand by.

The Nollington Court was in the vicinity of Turks Island, the Bahamas, where she struck a submerged object in Machori passage last night. A hole was stove in her side.

Mackay said the distress call was acknowledged by numerous ships, and that the S. S. Charges was proceeding to aid the Nollington Court. She was expected to arrive shortly.

MORE INDIANS

U. S. Reports Show Population Increases for 7 Years.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The "vanishing Americans" are staging a comeback.

The country's Indian population has been increasing by more than one per cent a year for the past seven years, John Collier, commissioner of Indian affairs, revealed today in his annual report to the secretary of the interior.

Goal In Sight As Roll Call Nears Close

18th Annual Red Cross Campaign to End Tomorrow.

With 50 per cent of their quota already reached, workers of the Richland county chapter of the American Red Cross headed down the home stretch today contident that they would reach their goal of 9,000 members before the curtain rings down on the 18th annual Roll Call tomorrow.

General Chairman W. J. Locke said today that practically all of the industries had reported to the industrial division chairman, Fred L. Tracy. Only two large plants have not been heard from.

Tracy reported $1,415 received from industry, nearly $100 over the membership figure of $1,323 reported in 1936 roll call.

2 Townships Over Top.

County division Chairman Harold Burns said that two county precincts, Jackson and Franklin townships had gone over their quota. Only eight of the 17 townships have reported they have completed their canvassing, however, Burns said.

Chairman Locke explained that Shelby, which usually reports approximately 2,000 members, was not expected to be heard from until after the membership drive closes tomorrow night.

With reports from numerous scattered precincts in addition to Shelby still outstanding, Locke said that the Richland chapter undoubtedly would retain its standing of having the highest per capita membership of any chapter in the state, an honor that it has held for the past three years. Last year 8,270 memberships were recorded by the chapter in Richland county.

Additional concerns and offices that have posted their 100 per cent roll call signs today were:

Richland Electric company, Headley-Perez Studio, Harry's Tire Store, Superior Brass company, Morgan's South Main Dry Cleaning company, Hall's Grocery, Wilging's Meat Market, Bates Chocolate Shop, Bauer Sisters, Ballylin Farm, Raemelton Farm, Herring Motor company, Martin Earhart Barber Shop, East Mansfield; Ohio Fuel Gas company, The American Railway Express Agency, The American Telephone and Telegraph company, The Ohio Bell Telephone company, Pontiac Garage, Western avenue school staff, R. DOOMED TO DIE

Dingledine Found Guilty In Slaying of 2 Officers.

SPRINGFIELD —(AP)— Henry Dingledine, 27-year-old paroled convict, was convicted of first degree murder today in the Sept. 3 killing of two Springfield peace officers. The jury's failure to recommend mercy made the death penalty mandatory.

The jury of seven men and five women returned the verdict at 10:25 a. m. It had deliberated for two and one-half hours the fate of the first of three men to be tried in the deaths of Chief Deputy Sheriff Edward Furry and city Paroiman Martin Randolph.

Robert Cornette, another paroled convict, also was killed in the gun battle at nearby Crystal Lake which followed the robbery of a Springfield cafe owner.

Dingledine had admitted being present at the cottage, but denied that either he or his father, Harry, who will go on trial Dec. 2, participated in the shooting.

NON-STRIKERS DODGE ROCKS AT FORD PLANT

Policeman Injured, Pickets Jailed After Clashes at St. Louis Factory.

TRY TO WRECK AUTOS

Officer Hurt While Keeping Strikers From Overturning Cars at Blockade.

ST. LOUIS—(UP)—Using automobiles to batter through picket lines, non-striking workers of the Ford Motor company entered the local assembly plant today in defiance of a strike called by the CIO United Automobile Workers of America.

Non-strikers arrived at the plant before the scheduled hour for operation of the assembly line and barged into the plant in cars before 7 a. m.

Rocks were thrown by pickets, several windshields were broken, one policeman was slightly injured and a dozen pickets were arrested on charges of disturbing the peace.

Organizer Jailed.

Among those arrested was Norman Smith, 38, a CIO organizer, who reported he was beaten recently in an anti-union demonstration at Memphis, Tenn. Most of those arrested were charged with disturbance on a basis of blocking streets with automobiles.

After the first cars entered the plant more followed in rapid order.

Several cars, after unloading workers, left the plant again for additional men.

Because part of the cars remained inside, while others made several trips, it was difficult to estimate the number of men who had entered.

An official of the company said, however, that the plant was operating. The official, refusing permission to use his name, said a majority of the employes were at work.

The patrolman was hurt when his leg was sprained while preventing pickets from overturning an automobile.

Fights Break Out.

Several fights broke out along the picket line when non-strikers attempted to walk by. They were speedily stopped and one offender was arrested and taken to jail.

Observers said that probably 250 cars, most of them not loaded, had entered the plant by 7 a. m.

The strike was called last night by Delmond Garst, regional director of the international union.

Less than 50 men were in the plant as a night shift was not on duty when Garst, on authority voted him by the international

Roosevelts Spend 1st Thanksgiving At White House

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Although President Roosevelt has been in office nearly five years, he and Mrs. Roosevelt will eat their first Thanksgiving turkey in the White House tomorrow.

Their customary holiday visit to the Warm Springs (Ga.) foundation was postponed until the president recovers fully from a tooth infection. He missed Thanksgiving dinner at Warm Springs last year, also, because he was en route to the Buenos Aires peace conference.

The last minute change in arrangements found most of the Roosevelt children already engaged for the holiday, so there will be no family reunion at the White House.

Only the president's eldest son and secretary, James Roosevelt, his wife, Betsey, and their 5-year-old daughter, Sara, are expected to be present.

The dinner will be early in the afternoon in deference to yellow-haired Sara's bedtime schedule. Her sister, Kate, nearly 2, isn't considered old enough for holiday dinners.

Attitude Can Spoil Girl's Romance

By VIRGINIA LEE

Because I have so many letters from young girls whose parents forbid them to have boy friends, "even to speak to boys," I am going to tell the following story:

The woman who told it is in her forties. She is French, and spent her girlhood in her native land, then went to England to live and teach, then married a man from the United States and has been in America ever since.

When she was a schoolgirl in a convent, she says, she had the usual crush on a boy who attended a nearby seminary. She used to go to church services three times a day because she knew he would be there. She never had a chance to talk to him or he to her, but she worshiped from afar. All the girls knew of her adoration, as she wasn't one to "hide her light under a bushel," she said. She carved his name on many of the beautiful chestnut trees that graced the school grounds. "There was nothing physical about my love for him," she said. "He was a young god—an ideal to me."

Of course, she had a diary, and one day she left this usually carefully guarded document at home hidden in the mattress. That day when the maid made the bed she decided to turn the mattress, found the book and took it to the girl's mother. The mother was horrified. She called the girl home from school and cried and stormed. She evidently considered that her daughter had sunk to the depths of degradation.

The girl, who adored her mother, was crushed. "Do you know, that did something to me," she told me. "I never again had anything to do with the boys while I was growing up. I had two cousins who went to the seminary, and I often handed them mash notes from other girls to be given to boys, but I never wrote a note or paid any attention to them."

Years afterward, after the World war, she went home for a vacation, and her mother talked about this episode and laughed about it and the fuss she had made over her daughter's innocent romance. She confessed that she never had been a modern woman until the war woke her up. Too late she saw how innocent and natural was that early love affair, and how I wonder whether even then she realized how ruthless she had been and how much of her daughter's confidence in her she had lost by her uncontrolled emotion. For the girl never again had the same admiration and respect for her mother that she had before this.

Such an interpretation by a parent of a child's first "tender passion" may indeed prove disillusioning. As one young girl put it, it is because such things "are connected in their minds with something more than itself and their conception is the product of experienced and slightly evil-minded age, that young folk are so condemned, and they never take the trouble to get beyond that lurid picture to the foundation material."

* * *

B. L. M. is 16 and in love with a "gentleman" of 30. She disobeyed her grandmother, so isn't allowed to go out for a week. Her friend is angry with her, too, because he says she has to go in too early—10:30. What do I think of that? She thinks it is "terrible," and would like to see her letter in print. She signs herself Broken Hearted Girl.

I think if you disobeyed your grandmother you should be punished, my dear. Many girls older than you are not allowed to have boy friends at all, so your grandmother is giving you a good deal of liberty. Ten-thirty is a very good time to be in, and a man of 30 who tempts a little girl to disobey her elders and stay out until all hours is a very poor friend.

I'm sorry to be so unsympathetic, but that is how I feel, and you would feel that way, too, if this man was making love to a girl friend your age and you were not in love with him.

* * *

ANN: If you cannot get interested in other boys, why not make up with the one with whom you have quarreled? It is silly to be so proud that you go on making yourself—and probably him—unhappy. Of course if you feel you cannot ever trust him and that he will be going out with other girls, I suppose you won't be happy with him and if he drinks he would not make a very good friend, either. Don't worry about his "going wrong," as you say. If he is going to go to the dogs every time something goes wrong in his life, you won't be happy if you marry him, will you?

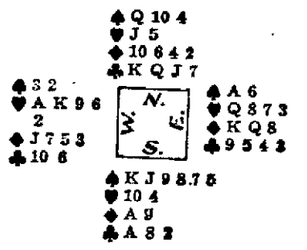
"The Authority on Authorities"

CHANGING THE SIGNAL

PLAYING a high card to an opening lead encourages a repeat of the suit. Following that play with a smaller card on the next trick asks for a third lead of it. But playing a still higher card on the second lead than the card used in the first place asks a discontinuance of the suit, telling partner in effect that what he desired was just two leads of the suit and then a switch.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable).

South started the bidding on this deal with 1-Spade. North called 2-Clubs, South 2-Spades, North 3-Spades and South four.

When the heart K was led by West, East decided that if his side could cash two heart tricks, a diamond and a trump, it could defeat the contract. He could not give West a high-low, for that would ask West to lead the suit again. His play of the 7 on the first round encouraged a continuance of the suit but when the A was played, he now threw the 8, which notified West that the 7 was not the start of a high-low.

As the club suit looked rather formidable, it appeared evident to East that a switch by his partner would no doubt be in the diamond suit. He was right in this assumption, and the plan East worked out on the first trick defeated the contract. When the spade A was won, East tried a second diamond, which held, giving his side four tricks.

To amuse the children on stormy days, let them blow soap bubbles. To make the bubbles bright colored, add a teaspoon or two of glycerin to the soapsuds. If plain soap is used, this will make the bubbles less likely to break, and they can be blown much larger than ordinary ones. It is a good plan to place an old rug, blanket or shawl on the floor; the bubbles can then be swung off the blowpipe and they will rest without breaking.

Geraniums and other house plants should be turned around in the window to promote the growth of well-rounded plants.

Lubrication Dispels Woes Of Fingertips

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty"

THERE really are very few women today who neglect to keep their nails well-groomed. Yet there are some who, though they manicure their nails regularly, have very unattractive fingertips. This is due often to the fact that the nails become dry and brittle, and break easily.

The reason women acquire brittle nails is because they do not treat their fingertips properly. They may think they're doing right by their nails, but they really aren't. When their nailtips become split and broken, they feel aggrieved about it. The woman who has healthy, attractive nails, usually gives them lubricating treatments. The average business girls, particularly, should keep a bit of oil or cream in her office with which to lubricate her fingertips after cleansing her carbon-soiled hands.

Olive Oil Massage Helps.

Dry, brittle nails and nails that tend to split and break easily require both internal and external treatments for their correction. The condition is caused by excessive dryness and lack of proper nourishment when the nail is in the process of formation. If person's diet is deficient in fats and oils, nail dryness and brittleness may result. So a woman thus afflicted should first add more of the fatty foods to her diet, for if her system is sufficiently supplied with the necessary oils, nature will supply enough to the nails to insure a healthy growth.

If the dryness of a girl's nails is due to external conditions alone, however, she can make up the deficiency in lubrication by external applications. A bit of warmed olive oil massaged into the base of each nail nightly will help a great deal. But I've found the best remedy to be soaking the fingertips each night for five or ten minutes in a melted mixture of one ounce of sweet almond oil, one ounce of lanolin and four drams of spermacetti. Then a bit of the mixture should be massaged into the base of each nail and permitted to remain on overnight. This helps to nourish the nails and restores them to normal health.

Heavy Polish Helps.

Women who have very dry, brittle nails can derive a good deal of benefit from applying one or several coatings of a heavy liquid polish out to the very tips of their nails. Such a polish, if heavy enough, helps to prevent the breaking, splitting and peeling that so often occur when the nails are dry and brittle, and it is possible to do this while still preserving the whiteness of the nail rims, too.

The trick in using nail polish in this fashion lies merely in employing two polishes—a colorless polish and a colored one. The nails should be buffed briskly first with a chamois buffer, in order to provide a smooth surface for the application of the enamel, and the colored polish should be used first after the buffing. It should be smoothed over the central part of each nail, but not over the rims or half-moons. And when this coating has fully dried, the colorless polish should be applied over each entire nail. In this way the nail-tip receives its protective coating of polish, and yet remains appropriately clear and white in appearance.

STUBBORN RHEUMATISM

Most of the aches, pains, stiffness, soreness and lameness of stubborn rheumatism, sciatica, neuritis and rheumatic gout are caused or aggravated by excess uric acid or other circulating poisons.

This being the case, one outstanding, swift and safe prescription, as any modern druggist will tell you is Alienru Capsules—little green, easily swallowed capsules that are powerful yet harmless.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

WHEN MOTHER GRAHAM unbends she is regal and unstinted in her graciousness. Her orphaned granddaughter, Mary, is the apple of her eye, and by the sacrifice of my cherished roses for Mary's room, to welcome her homecoming I had unwittingly done more to gratify her than if I had lavished weeks of less spectacular service upon herself.

"You mustn't call yourself cantankerous," I said with emphasis. "You are never that!"

"You are a most artistic fibber, my child," she said. "Or else, you have invented an entirely new name for my disposition. It isn't the pleasantest one in the world. What time did you say you expected Mary?"

"If they started at daybreak, as they probably did, they ought to be here at 3 o'clock," I said.

"It's about noon, now, isn't it?" she queried.

"Five after," I told her.

"Three hours more," she said with a little sigh, and I knew that the minutes before she could see Mary seemed endless to her.

"Don't think about them!" I advised. "Luncheon must be almost ready, and, afterward, I have a most exciting secret to tell you. You won't have time to think about anything else, I'll warrant."

Father In Secret.

"Does your father know it?" she asked, knowing that any exciting happening in our household generally holds my father's figure somewhere in its background. "And, by the way, come to think of it, I haven't seen him this morning."

"He isn't here," I said. "He left at daybreak, to be gone a week or more."

"Why?" she demanded.

"Ah!" I answered with an impressively lifted forefinger. "That's a part of the secret. If you eat a luncheon satisfactory to me, I'll tell you everything. Otherwise, not a word!"

"How can anybody eat, with talk like that?" she grumbled, but she descended the stairs with alacrity and hurried to the kitchen, where I heard her demanding of Katie how soon luncheon would be ready.

I did not wait to learn the outcome of the colloquy, but hurried out to the veranda, finding Dicky just stretching himself into wakefulness.

Dicky Takes Cue.

"Hello, Gorgeous!" he greeted me exuberantly. "I see by the posies stuck in your belt you've been out among 'em. Come here and give your old man a kiss."

"You come here," I laughed, "then I'll know you're on your feet. Mother's in the kitchen, hurrying and harrying Katie about luncheon. You know—"

He needed no other adjuration. He sprang from the couch hammock and rushed across the veranda, pausing only to give me a peck upon the cheek in passing.

"Tell her I'm washing up," he said as he dashed for the downstairs lavatory. "I'll be right out."

But I caught his sleeve firmly.

"I must tell you something first," I said. "She was so restless over Mary's coming, said the time seemed so long, that I told her I had a most thrilling secret to tell her, concerning the reason father had gone away."

"Madge! You colossal idiot!" he exclaimed. "What will Dad say?"

"He didn't stipulate I shouldn't tell your mother," I retorted weakly enough. "But if you think I'd better not mention the emeralds, I'll invent something else."

"Hush!" Dicky whispered imperatively—he was facing the hall while my eyes were toward the lawn. "Here she comes."

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, Nov. 25.

The unexpected and unforeseen dominate the atmosphere of this day, judging by the ruling planets. This applies to employment, where there may be a rather surprising token or sign of preferment.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a delightful year, with many unexpected and surprising developments. There is promise of preferment from employers or superiors, with promotion as well as business expansion. This may call for a radical rearrangement of the life, its environs, associates and plans.

A child born on this day may be above the ordinary in talents, attributes and impulses, and it may be idealistic, altruistic and romantic. However, it should attract employers and others who may assist it to turn its singular ingenuity to splendid practical account.

For Friday, Nov. 26.

A day of excellent progress upon the pursuit of high goals and ambitions, with much of an expansive and productive nature, is presaged by major planetary activities. While dealing with large interests and corporations may succeed, yet there is need for caution and sagacity. Safeguard papers and other property and shun strife.

Those whose birthday it is have a year of excellent prospects before them for the expanding of their fortunes and reaching high goals. Speculation and big propositions in connection with influential and friendly interests should succeed, if you use sagacity, refrain from disputes and safeguard papers and other property.

A child born on this day may be an efficient, versatile and ambitious character, although it may have traits calling for self-discipline and control. It may have a rather impulsive and pugnacious disposition and be not too careful as to truth and integrity. It should succeed in business or writing.

If green peppers used to garnish salads are parboiled they will be more palatable. Boil peppers for five minutes, pour off water and place in ice chest until ready to use.

Linseed oil rubbed over walnut furniture will give it a rich gloss.

THE STATE vs. ELNA JEPSON

By NANCY BARR MAVITY

(Copyright 1937)

CHAPTER XXIII

Mrs. Nielson bustled out. "Here's your bag, Miss Betty, with Miss Jepson's thanks," the matron said. "She asked me to wash out the comb, so don't forget to stop for it as you go out."

Elna never knew the effect of this simple request. Betty Burson was a feature writer respected by the news writers because of her gay disregard of evidence and her influence on public opinion. She made up her mind that no woman who arranged for a comb to be washed immediately after borrowing it could be a murderess. Her pointed columns later reflected this conviction without misstating a single fact.

At the trial later she let herself be nicknamed "Defense Betty."

Mrs. Nielson shook her head as she withdrew to her own room to wash the comb. Poor child, she would try, but she just wouldn't know how to deal with the reporters whom the matron affectionately called "her" "boys."

* * *

When Elna was ready to face them, she felt rather like some one walking along the beach and suddenly overwhelmed by surf. They were upon her, two or three perched on chairs, others dangling from the table. Tripods were stacked in the corner. "Curly" Lawrence, a blond, cheery young man, said to Elna, "Ready, Miss Jepson? It won't be so long or trying as you think. Just imagine you're going to the dentist."

Elna rose very straight and tall, her hands clenched in the pockets of her suit coat. Suddenly she turned her back.

A howl of protest rose behind her.

"No prisoner need have her picture taken without her permission. I have given my permission freely and I do not withdraw the promise. There is one exception. I will turn now. Will the person who broke instructions last night, to hide in my hedge and steal a picture against police orders, not to hurt me, which was his business, but to try to break Inspector Jewell, take an exclusive picture of me now?"

She had whirled with lightning swiftness. She caught sight of a hand, twitching with temptation, dropping with the fear of some trap.

"Very well, gentlemen—that is, the other gentlemen," she said. "The rest of you may steal pictures of me, if I continue to be interesting enough. This one"—she pointed a straight finger—"is entitled to what he wants now. I will tell the rest of you this. Any other stolen picture by him may be branded as a fake by myself, my attorney and half-a-dozen witnesses if necessary. Any news which does not correspond with that of the other papers, in the way of special knowledge, will be denied in a way that will satisfy the rest of you. If this person quotes my statement, I shall deny it. I imagine the other papers would not care to support the News in the circumstances."

The cameramen were stunned by this attack on the News "beat" but they did not forget that the clock goes round. She accepted their poses with indifference.

* * *

Meanwhile the reporters were whispering among themselves in a corner. "The thing to decide," said Curly Lawrence, "is what to do about Lenhart of the News. Of course we all admit he's a low-down but we're not fighting the News' political battles. We can't punish him for breaking the police agreement, without calling in the aid of the lady murderess."

A hand touched Curley's arm. A low voice murmured: "A word with you." The two men moved away. L. M. James was far beyond showing pride in by-lines. If a story of his appeared without one he would merely have assumed a typographical error, and let it go.

"This girl will make a fool of herself," James said. "She already has. She thinks this is her case, and not ours. But you'd better now play your own game, without the News. There might be trouble. She might get off."

"Why?" Curly asked.

"Because I've been sent down on this case and, as you know, I usually handle politics, not murder. My orders are to find and print nothing but the truth. I think I can do it and make asses of everybody who tries a different line. I have no idea, pro or con, as yet, but you're a good reporter and I thought I'd tell you my line. You're good at handling most people. I think myself this girl would be more sensible to let you handle her. But—you'll have your hands full. I've tried it myself."

* * *

Curley nodded and strolled back, holding up a hand and shooing the cameramen.

Elna sank into a chair, fatigue breaking over her in waves. "I'll answer any questions I can," she began quietly. "You cannot quite realize how tired I am."

"Won't you give us your own story of the situation and circumstances that led to your arrest?"

Elna recognized the speaker as the man who the News cameraman had touched. "I shall give no information to a representative of the News," she said. "I cannot keep the rest of you from giving him what I say. But I can call the chief of police and force him to withdraw, on reasons which I can give."

A hand reached out and plucked her sleeve. She recognized the long, dark face of James, and turned.

"Look here," he whispered, "don't be a damn fool. You're not fighting Jewell's battle. If you do, you just make things worse for him. He's got all the other papers with him so far. If you don't look out, they'll wonder if there's something against him after all. And don't fight the press—any of them. Advice. 'Bye."

Elna apparently had been leaning against the back of the chair. "On second thought, I consider that the News man is what he is only because he has to obey his boss. He may be good to his children, for all I know. I shall treat him as fairly as the rest."

James whispered to Curly: "She's a worse fool than I thought, though I managed her after a fashion."

"My paper will be against her—it's all for the D. A. re-election, and I can't help it. But there's such a thing as being a magnificent fool. She's doing badly because she doesn't know the ropes. And because she doesn't know the ropes, she's pretty grand," Curly answered.

"I cannot answer what happened, any more than I have already explained it," Elna was saying. "Naturally my attorney would prevent my telling anything against myself, if there were anything. However, we did not discuss the case. He told me how to treat you. I'm afraid I can't manage that."

* * *

Despairing of getting direct information, Curly turned Elna over to the women. Sometimes prisoners let fall accidental remarks to their own sex which proved of later value.

"I know you can't talk about the case directly," began a tiny golden-haired blond," but can't you tell us how it felt to be investigated and arrested? I am sure it will help the public to understand and sympathize with all you have been through."

"I'm not much interested in my public." Only a few of the women reporters noted the remark and sent an answering smile. "As to the investigation, it was as courteous as circumstances permitted." Looking straight into the china-blue eyes before her, she added: "Inspector Jewell, of the homicide squad, taught me that a policeman can be a gentlemtn when he arrested me. Don't print that if you think it funny. I had some crazy idea that people were arrested by having a hand put on their shoulder. I was nearly all in, and he did it that way to make things a little smoother for my ignorance. Print it or ask him or let it go. I don't care. The News got its beat."

"How about your first night in jail."

Elna began to waver in her chair. "I'd try to tell you—if I could—I'd try, truly." Her voice faded farther and farther away. "Horror—I can't tell—Mrs. Nielsen—"

Betty Burson rushed across the hall to Mrs. Nielson's quarters. "Quick!" she cried. "Elna needs you. Now. They'll be asking her questions again if we don't hurry. Take her to your place till Gorham's off. I've a pull with the city doctor and can make it all right."

Elna was lying on the floor of the visitors' room when they entered.

* * *

Betty ran down the flight of stairs separating the women's jail from the men's quarters, and kept her finger on the elevator button until the elevator arrived.

"Where's the rest of you?" Jim peered out, but Betty had already slipped behind him.

"There aren't any rest. To the doctor's office. I'll tell you on the way down."

"Scoop, Miss Betty?" Jim asked with friendliness.

Betty spoke gravely, leaning against the back railing of the elevator. "If I don't get that doctor without being seen, and if you don't tell the rest, who'll be chasing along sometime or other, that you haven't seen me, your beautiful Jepson case will go phut. I know what I'm talking about, and I've never lied to you yet."

"Thank you, Miss Betty. I'll do just as you say, and hold the elevator a bit when the rest ring."

Dr. Grayson was seated in his big swinging leather chair, his feet tilted on his table, his wide mouth open when Betty disturbed his sleep. Slamming his feet to the floor. She said "Business!"

"Hello, sob sister, I thought I'd given orders that you were all to let me alone. I'll be called at the trial. Don't be silly. You can't touch me."

Neither had mentioned the Jepson case. Betty mentioned it now.

"I'm leaving the scene of immediate action and giving my neighbors the chance to yell all the questions they can get past Mother Nielsen, which won't have much effect. The Jepson girl will spend the night tonight in Mrs. Nielsen's quarters, by your authority. I gave it temporarily, until you signed the slip and knew what it was all about."

Dr. Grayson banged the legs of his chair to the floor as if he were banging Betty in person. "You use my authority. I tell you, our cases are not tried by the press."

"The press believes differently, and the public often shares the illusion without knowing it. I came with some information on the Jepson case. It may prevent losing your case."

Says World's Tonic Gave Immediate Relief

This Prominent Lady Had Suffered for Years from Troubles in Her Stomach, Dizziness, Backache and Constipation.

Of the hundreds of statements being made about the great medicine, World's Tonic, which is doing so much good over this section, none is of greater interest than that of Mrs. Clara Caley, of R. D. No. 4, Coshocton, O.

"For years I have suffered with my stomach and everything I ate would ferment and form gas. I suffered agony after eating; the gas pressed against my heart and caused palpitation. I thought I had heart trouble and high blood pressure. I was so nervous I could never get a good night's sleep, had headaches and was always dizzy. My memory was very poor; I would lay something down and in a few minutes forget where I put it. My kidneys were affected and my water had a bad odor to it and I had terrible pains in my back and side. I was always tired and just felt awful most of the time.

"I began taking World's Tonic which relieved my stomach trouble and I am able to eat all of my meals and digest my food. I can now eat fruit, which I have not been able to do for years. I am not nervous, sleep well and my stomach organs are in good condition. World's Tonic has made a new woman of me and I am glad to give this public endorsement for it. My friends all tell me how well I am looking and I tell them they should also take World's Tonic."

A few doses of World's Tonic will convince you that it is the medicine you are looking for.

World's Tonic is for sale at CENTRAL DRUG STORE.—Adv. (D85)

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 LBS. A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, lumbago, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Congress Leaders Again Sidetrack Tax Revision Plan

WON'T DEBATE PROGRAM TILL EARLY IN '38

Administration Aids Frown on Proposal to Consider Plan During Special Session.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Administration leaders in congress refused again today to put business tax revision on the special session program despite a concerted demand from house Republicans for immediate repeal of the undistributed profits levy.

The leaders said January was the earliest time that the subject could be debated, even though a house subcommittee had approved tentatively a substitute for the widely-opposed corporate tax law.

The new bill virtually abandoned the theory of taxing undistributed corporate profits.

Adopt Resolution.

The Republican resolution was adopted unanimously late yesterday at a special caucus attended by 62 of the party's 90 house members.

They declared immediate repeal was necessary "in view of a distressing increase in unemployment during the last six weeks."

Chairman Vinson (D., Ky.) of the tax subcommittee said he believed the new system "couldn't keep from having a good effect on business confidence now, even the projected revision is not carried out until congress meets next year."

Democratic Leader Barkley of the senate expressed a similar view, and added:

"I don't think the committee's action increases the prospect for revision at this session."

While public attention centered on the tax maneuvers, the senate began serious debate on the new farm bill.

The first day of discussion yesterday was virtually wasted, however, for few senators were familiar enough with the complicated measure to explain it. Chairman Smith (D., S. C.) of the agriculture committee said he could not estimate the cost of the program.

Wage Bill Chance Slim.

Prospects for special session enactment of the wage-hour bill meanwhile became still darker. Despite an unusual appeal from Democratic Leader Rayburn for signatures on a petition to pry the measure out of the house rules committee, 49 names were lacking. Proponents of the bill began a personal canvass to obtain the additional signatures — tactics rarely necessary on an administration measures.

The parliamentary situation in the senate made tax action unlikely before 1938, even if the house should act more swiftly than present plans contemplate.

Business Slump Only Temporary, Henry Ford Says

DETROIT—(AP)—Henry Ford, in an interview today, said that the present business recession is "temporary and artificial."

"No one," he said, "need look at next year with any uncertainty. The present slow-down is not a setback; it's the pause before another climb. Two things helped to bring it on just now and one of them was the uncertainty of business regarding political interference, but congress is taking care of that. The other was the stock market fluctuation.

"Everybody knows the stock market has no permanent effect on business, but it does have an effect on the state of mind of the American business man who plays the market. He often mistakes his personal depression for a business depression. The stock market has no more real effect on American business than the results of a dog race in California."

6 Others Hurt When Oil Train Derails In California.

FRESNO, Cal. — (U.P.) — Five transients were killed and at least six others were injured today when eight oil tank cars in the center of a 40-car Southern Pacific freight train jumped the track in Kerman, 15 miles west of here.

Station Master Roy Williams said the dead were unidentified. He said others might still be in the wreckage.

Two of the injured men were near death. All the victims suffered oil burns. The derailed cars tore up a quarter-mile of track.

France Hunts Leaders of Civil War Plot

Up and Down THE STREET

Virgil Smith, of near Shelby, today owned a hunting record that probably will not be equalled this year. Having only a rifle and three shells available, Smith went a huntin' this week and returned with three rabbits. One bullet to a rabbit. Many nimrods get fewer rabbits with a whole box of shells.

* * *

And now here's another hunting story, slightly different —about the hunter who got a rabbit without a gun. He's Roscoe (Empire market) Smith, who went along into the woods with a couple hunting companions. A cottontail showed up and the two companions fired and missed. As the scared rabbit ran past Smith, he let loose a kick, connected and knocked the animal against a fence post, breaking its neck. Painless and less mussy than shooting.

Earl E. Hudson, 181 Western avenue celebrated his 50th birthday yesterday in a unique manner. Hudson, a lumber salesman promised his friends several years ago that when he reached the half century mark he was going to have little metal buttons made for souvenirs. Yesterday he surprised them by passing out little gold colored buttons with the number 50 inscribed on them in blue.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold McKinley of Cleveland (he was the former Off The Record columnist of The News-Journal) are still giggling about an incident that happened on their trip down here from Cleveland yesterday. George Sowers, Cleveland engineer and Mrs. McKinley's uncle, was driving while the McKinleys were "scrooched" down in the back seat, with a blanket tucked warmly around them. At a Medina filling station Sowers bought gas, and the operator spied the occupants of the back seat. "Wait a minute," he yelled, and ran into the station. When he came out he opened the back door of the car with a kindly, fatherly smile, and handed in a funny-page. "Here kiddies," he said, "you can read the funnies while your papa is driving."

CAPACITY AUDIENCE APPLAUDS SENIORS' FAST MOVING COMEDY

A capacity audience last night applauded the performance of the "Lady of Letters," a fast-moving three-act comedy ppresented by the January graduating class of the Senior high school in the school auditorium.

"Lady of Letters," is a modern play, the action of which takes place in a small college town in southern Texas. It concerns the naive wife of a professor in the small town played by Doris Betz, who feeling shut out from the society of the town, buys a play from an unsuccessful author, sends it to a publisher, only to find to her surprise that the book is published and becomes a best seller.

After the real author claims the rights to the novel, and the professor's wife is forced to go through many unpleasant days in trying to make her family believe that the book is her own, she decides to settle down again to the daily routine of her home.

Miss Betz as Adelaide Willifer, the pretty and innocent wife of Professor Willifer, gave an outstanding performance. George Biddle as Mr. Creepmore, Mary Spiker as Cornelia Lawrence, Richard Donnan as Warren Ainsley, and Richard Moore as Gilbert Willifer, also gave commendable performances.

Others in the cast were Thelma Dickson, Myrta Levering, Margaret Sams, Martha Davey, Robert Murpry, Richard Coe, and Kathleen Gehl.

The play was under the direction of E. L. Heasley, school dramatic instructor. Music between acts was presented by the high school orchestra under the direction of Sigurd Jorgenson.

Ushers were Helen Tomlin, Eileen Hill, Dorothy Dean, Helen Beer, Mary Taylor, Mildred Johns, Martha Smith, and Mary Campbell, all members of the senior class.

SEEKS 3-POWER PARLEY ON WAR

Britain Invites U. S. Envoy to Continue Discussions on Sino-Jap Peace.

BRUSSELS —(UP)— Great Britain has invited Norman H. Davis, chief United States delegate to the far eastern peace conference, to go to London and continue discussions of the Chinese-Japanese war, it was learned today.

British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain had suggested that Davis go to London Friday, leading to the possibility of tri-power talks between Britain, the United States and France as French Premier Camille Chautemps and Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos will arrive in London over the week-end.

Davis has not replied to the British invitation, it was learned, and apparently is awaiting instructions from Washington. He originally had intended to leave next Wednesday for the United States without attempting further conversations on the far eastern question.

Diplomatic sources asserted that Britain apparently would like to hold three-power conversations and tell Japan that the collapse of the Brussels conference will not mean the end of their efforts to end the conflict.

AGENTS THWART PLAN TO CREATE DICTATORSHIP

Seized Documents Disclose Conspiracy Similar to That In Spanish Revolt.

PARIS—(AP)—Grim operatives of the Surete Nationale ranged the length of France today to arrest the "higher ups" of a thwarted civil war plot to replace France's Republican government with dictatorship and monarchy.

The conspiracy had been wrecked, the people's front regime announced, and "the government is sure of itself. It is capable of subduing all criminal action directed against the republic."

Raids by the national police organization, extending from the German frontier through the capital and to the southern regions near the frontier of insurgent Spain indicated the hunt for the plot leaders was in full swing.

Likened To Spain.

The implications of the conspiracy smacked of fantastic fiction—yet of the reality that France has seen in 16-month civil war in Spain, her southern neighbor.

Papers seized in the most important of a long series of raids disclosed plans for an uprising similar to that which plunged Spain into armed conflict.

The documents, confiscated yesterday in a Paris loan office, brought to eight what police said were complete arrangements of a conspiracy "against Republican institutions."

The plans included a detailed map of Paris' ancient sewer system—passages large enough to permit movement of armed forces with exits near the chamber of deputies.

The map marked the location of regular army munitions depots in Paris. Other documents listed the names and addresses of all officers of the mobile guard and police in the three departments around Paris.

The police and mobile guard are France's first line of defense against civil uprising.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

Words and Deeds.

QUOTING MR. ROOSEVELT against himself has been one of the great American diversions for more than four years. It has been so easy to do and there has been so much to do it with. History does not show that we ever had a president whose words and desires so sharply conflicted.

Every session of congress provides fresh intances of discrepancy. Ten days ago, for example, there was delivered a presidential message to congress, 25 per cent of which was devoted to the serious problems created by the business recession. The whole tone of the communication breathed a determination to restore business confidence. It followed many private conferences, as a result of which presidential advisers became convinced the president favored repeal of the surplus-profits tax and modification of the capital gains tax — two things to which there is general accord in contributing the collapse of prosperity.

* * *

NOT ONLY were the public and private words of the president indicative of his decision to remove these handicaps to business but the concluding sentence of his message, "For the sake of the nation I hope for your early action," naturally was taken to mean he wanted it done at once. But does he follow through with action himself along these lines? He does not. Instead, we find him using the full White House weight to curb the movement in congress for immediate repeal of the surplus tax and exerting himself to limit the session to consideration of the original administration program, the principal features of which, if enacted, so far from helping business regain its health will impose additional burdens and restrictions

* * *

THE FACT is that the business situation which adds to the gravity of unemployment and is alarming in other ways, is a far greater justification for this extra session than any of the items in the Roosevelt program. The fact is that action to relieve business is much more vital to the nation at the moment than the passage of either the work-and-hour control bill, upon which organized labor itself is badly divided, or the new crop-control bill, concerning which among farmers there is even more discord and dissension There exists no real public sentiment for these proposals, each of which is mixed with propaganda and politics, and both of which will add to the cost and confusion of government. On the other hand, the serious nature of the business slump deeply concerns every man, woman and child in the country and the desire for remedial action to check it is general. In face of this condition, and holding the convictions on the subject he has expressed, the president's natural course would seem to be to give recovery right of way over reform, and urge congress to relieve business before it enacted any other class legislation, however desirable and no matter, how much committed—particularly as that is what congress would like to do.

* * *

INSTEAD, his plan is to postpone any tax revision until the regular session next year and devote himself entirely to driving through the work-and-hour bill and the new AAA, both of which business views with alarm. One would think the gravity of the present situation would convince a man in Mr. Roosevelt's position that this is not the time for delay, that reforms could more safely wait than relief, that by the time he gets around to relieving business there may be very little business to relieve. But, apparently that involves too much of a reversal for the president to contemplate, too great a sacrifice of pride. So, putting aside the matter of immediate business relief, in a recent speech he directs another hostile thrust at the supreme court and resurrects George Washington to justify large expenditures of federal funds upon agriculture. He quotes Washington as believing that cultivation of the soil grows more and more an object of public patronage. "Institutions for promoting it," wrote Washington, "grow up supported by the public purse and to what object can it be dedicated with greater propriety?"

* * *

IT WAS inevitable that this quotation by Mr. Roosevelt to justify his agricultural policy should bring to light Washington's letter to Jay, concerning the court, which told Mr. Roosevelt his agricultural policy was unconstitutional. It is contained in one of Elbert Hubbard's books and quotes Washington as follows:

"There must be a court, perpetual and supreme, to which all questions of international disputes between states or people be referred. This court must be greater than the executive, greater than any individual state; separated and apart from any political party. You must be the first head of this court, just as I am now head of the executive."

In commenting upon that letter, Hubbard wrote: "John Jay, as every schoolboy knows, was the first Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. By his sagacity, his dignity and knowledge of men and love of order and uprightness, he gave it that high place which it yet holds, and which it must hold; for when the decisions of the Supreme Court are questioned by a state or people, the fabric of our government is but a spider's web through which anarchy and unreason will stalk."

Mansfield's Satisfied That There's No Game Turkey Day.

By OSCAR RUHL,
News-Journal Sports Editor.

THURSDAY is Thanksgiving day, it is needless to inform you, and sports writers annually associate the day with football as though that is for which it was made a holiday.

Many football classics will be staged on frozen greenswards Thursday, but Mansfield is more fortunate than many other cities, and it will not have to leave the warm fireside to root the home team to victory in this wintry weather.

Since the annual Mansfield-Ashland tussle was shifted from the Turkey day, Mansfield's loyal rooters have been getting their football via the air lanes. They're well satisfied with this arrangement, too.

Mansfield fans will never forget some of the conditions under which the Mansfield-Ashland series was renewed. For instance, in 1930, the game was played in sub-zero weather. It was the next Turkey day that it was necessary to plow the snow off Stadium field. It was so deep.

These two games convinced Mansfield and Ashland athletic authorities that it was time to eliminate the Turkey day affair.

Several of the earlier games have also been marred by bad weather, such as last Saturday, but the conditions have been considerable better in most instances than for the Turkey day tilts.

What A Meal, What A Game!

MANY great grid battles have been staged on Thanksgiving day, but probably the most unusual was the one in which Ed Wynn, the radio wit, participated.

"I was invited to a Thanksgiving day dinner a few years ago," Wynn jests, "and at the table were by host and hostess, their eight children and myself, making a total of 11. The table was laid out like a football field and they sat me on the 50-yard line'.

"The hostess 'blew the whistle' and the host 'kicked off' with turkey. Someone 'signaled' for a 'tair catch' and behind 'perfect interference' it went back up the table. I was so interested in watching the 'team work' on the turkey that I didn't see the hostess 'forward pass' the sweet potatoes. It didn't make any difference because they were 'intercepted' before I could get my hands on them.

"They had one play called 'wing back formation.' This consisted of everybody taking a piece of turkey and putting a 'wing back' on the platter. I tried to get in on this 'play' but was 'off side' and the 'wing' was given to the host.

"All of a sudden I spied some home-made biscuits and started an 'end run' around the table, but by the time I got 'through the opposition' they were being 'carried" off the table in twos and threes. One of the children 'tumbled' and I made a 'center buck' across the table and speared a biscuit with a fork. Even though I 'recovered' the biscuit I was 'penalized 15 yards' for 'illegal use of the hands.' I was taken off the table and forced to sit in the living room.

"That was that. Later that night I ate my turkey in an all-night lunch wagon."

MYTHICAL STATE TITLE HINGES ON 'BIG-4' GAME

Reserve-Case Game In Cleveland to Tell Tale on Thanksgiving Day.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio winds up its tightest football race in years Thanksgiving day with four contests, and on the outcome of one—Western Reserve vs Case at Cleveland—hangs the mythical state title and the "Big Four" championship.

Case is in position to take the state-wide laurels, and a share of the Big Four title, if the Rough Riders upset the Red Cats. However, should Reserve win as expected, the Red Cats take the Cleveland championship while the state honors go to Denison's "Big Red" team, beaten once and tied once in eight starts.

Denison Through.

Denison can do nothing more toward winning or losing the crown, its season having been completed Saturday as it edged Oberlin 2 to 0, a last-period safety providing the victory margin.

The other two titles, in the Buckeye and Ohio conferences, have been decided. Marshall defeated Dayton 7 to 0 Saturday to wrap up the Buckeye championship, the first it ever won, while Baldwin-Wallace grabbed the Ohio league's top spot a week ago when Wooster knocked Denison off the peak.

While the Ohio loop has closed up for the season, one game remains in the Buckeye. It has no bearing on the league race, however, as the second division Miami and Cincinnati clubs are the gladiators.

Xavier, surprise winner over Akron's Zippers by a touchdown margin Saturday, meets another tough foe in the up-and-coming Rockets of Toledo as a turkey day attraction, while Wilberforce entertains West Virginia State on the Greene county gridiron. The game, originally scheduled at Cleveland, was shifted to Wilberforce because of lack of interest in the sixth city.

Meets Wesleyan.

Marshall, winner of eight games and tied but once this season, ends its season's work by meeting West Virginia Wesleyan at Huntington.

BUCKEYE SHOWDOWN DUE

Present Situation May Result in Death of Conference.

DELAWARE —(AP)— The oft-recurring talk of the break-up of the Buckeye football conference came into the open again today and headed toward a showdown at the meeting of the league in Columbus Dec. 11.

Athletic Director George Gauthier of Ohio Wesleyan university and permanent Buckeye secretary said he "understood" that some teams would refuse to schedule loop members for 1939 and this would force either a change of rules or disintigration of the conference.

Double-Barreled Program On Schedule This Week-End

Alabama-Vanderbilt Tilt Tops Turkey Day Menu; Army, Navy and Pittsburgh, Duke Collide In Saturday Headliners.

By HENRY SUPER, United Press Correspondent.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—With the exception of New Year games and a few scattered December offerings, football bows from the national scene this week with a double-barreled program on Thanksgiving and Saturday.

The turkey day schedule will be featured by the Alabama-Vanderbilt classic in which the southeastern conference championship is at stake. The largest crowd of the season—approximately 102,000 persons—will fill Philadelphia's municipal stadium for Saturday's big game—Army-Navy.

From a national standpoint, however, Fordham-N. Y. U. and Pittsburgh-Duke on Saturday are far more important than the colorful clash between the Middies and Cadets.

Focus Eyes on East.

The eyes of California will be on the east during those two days of competition, for Fordham, Pittsburgh and Alabama, all undefeated, are the leading candidates to oppose the Golden Bears in the Rose bowl.

Alabama, heading the southeast division with five victories closes its season against Vanderbilt, which is tied for second with Lousiana State. Another perfect record eleven, Colorado, ends its season against Denver, with the latter in a position to tie Colorado for the Rocky mountain title if it can upset the Buffaloes. Santa Clara, the nation's other undefeated untied team, ends its season against Gonzaga Sunday.

The three undefeated but tied elevens still active — Fordham, Pittsburgh and Holy Cross—finish Saturday. Fordham, whose only blemish is a tie with Pittsburgh, meets an N. Y. U. team which hopes to repeat last year's upset victory which blasted the Rams' Rose bowl chances.

Pittsburgh ends with powerful Duke, and Holy Cross encounters Boston college.

The Program.

East — Thanksgiving pairings light, featuring Brown-Rutgers, Duquesne-Detroit, Pennsylvania-Cornell, and West Virginia-George Washington. On Saturday, N. Y. U.-Fordham and Army-Navy top the program. Two other games pair Boston college—Holy Cross and Columbia-Stanford.

Mid-West—Both programs very light. On Thanksgiving, Kansas plays Missouri in a Big Six game while on Saturday Nebraska, defending champion, meets Kansas State in the game which will decide the conference race. The big mid-west game Saturday features Notre Dame and Southern California.

South—Three games, topped by Vanderbilt-Alabama, features south-eastern conference competition on Thursday. Others are Kentucky-Tennessee and Mississippi-Mississippi State. Conference games on Saturday are: Auburn-Florida, Georgia-Georgia Tech, and Louisiana-Tulane. In the southern conference, where North Carolina has clinched the title five games are scheduled Thursday—Clemson-Furman; Davidson-Wake Forest; Maryland-W. and M., and V. M. I.-V. P. I.

Texas Faces A. & M.

Southwest—Texas plays Texas A. and M. in the only conference game Thursday while S. M. U. meets T. C. U. and Baylor plays Rice in Saturday's engagements. Rice leads the conference but the outcome may eventually hinge on the Rice-S. M. U. game on Dec. 4.

Rocky Mountain — Conference competition ends Thursday with three games—Colorado-Denver; Utah U.-Utah State and Wyoming-Greeley State.

Pacific Coast—Two intersectional games feature Saturday's program—San Francisco-Michigan State and U. C. L. A.-Missouri. Oregon plays the U. S. Marines and Santa Clara, hoping for another trip to the Sugar bowl, ends its season Sunday against Gonzaga. No major games scheduled for Thursday.

Akron Coach To Speak At Ram Banquet

Jimmy Aiken, coach of the Akron university football team, will be the principal speaker at the annual football banquet to be staged by the "M" association for the Madison high school eleven, Mid-State league champion, in the auditorium Wednesday, Dec. 1.

Aiken, whose Akron team lost only two games, is regarded as one of the most capable speakers among Ohio college coaches.

A former W. & J. star, Aiken coached at Martins Ferry, Findlay, Toledo Scott and Canton McKinley before taking over the Akron post last fall. It was during Aiken's regime at Canton that McKinley developed into one of the grid powers of the state.

LUCAS TOPS LEXINGTON

Registers 27-23 Triumph In Second League Win.

LEXINGTON — Lucas high's fast-stepping cage combine registered its second straight Richland county basketball league victory here last night by defeating Lexington, 27 to 23. It was Lexington's initial tilt of the season.

Coach Gil Weikert's athletes, who last week defeated Union in their first game, hopped into an early lead they never relinquished. Lexington climbed within three points of the winner's advantage at the half, but were unable to overtake the sharpshooting invaders.

Led by Greulich, who scored 16 points, Lucas enjoyed a 10-5 lead in the first stanza and a 14-11 advantage at the half.

With Greulich contributing six points in the third period the visitors increased their lead to a 22-16 advantage. Crawford tallied six points for the winners, Hugehard and Rule led for the Minutemen with five points each.

In the preliminary attraction, Lexington reserves defeated Lucas seconds, 15 to 7.

"Submarine D-1."

"Submarine D-1," with Pat O'Brien, Wayne Morris and George Brent in the leading roles makes its bow in Mansfield Thursday when it opens at the Madison theater. O'Brien and Morris portray a couple of submarine crewmen who have developed two great inventions—a device to shoot men safely to the ocean's surface if a ship is sunk, and another to raise the boat itself. In the film, the D-1 is rammed and sunk during war game maneuvers, and their inventions get a chance to show their worth. Doris Weston, a Major Bowes "find" provides the heart interest, with Frank McHugh in a supporting role. "Second Honeymoon." with Loretta Young and Tyrone Power, plays through today.

"The Awful Truth."

Irene Dunne, screen comedienne, heads the cast of "The Awful Truth," opening at the Ohio today. The comedy revolves around the adventures of Miss Dunne and Cary Grant. The two are divorced and when the ex-wife starts stepping out with an Oklahoma oil king, things begin to happen. Miss Dunne enjoys the whole affair until Grant announces his engagement to a flighty young gal with a social background. The balance of the picture is devoted to the divorcee's attempt to win back her ex-spouse. Asta, the wire-haired terrior of the "Thin Man" series, plays an important part in the role of "Mr. Smith."

"Thunder in the City."

Edward G. Robinson comes to the screen of the Majestic Thursday in a new type of role in "Thunder in the City." The film depicts the screen's famed "Little Caesar" as a high-pressure American who involves the city of London in an amazing tangle. In the picture, Robinson crashes London's high society, falls in love with the daughter of a duke, and then high-pressures himself into a get-rich-quick scheme so sensational that even the banks of the Thames try to give him money. Lull Deste, continental screen star, makes her debut in the film. Buck Jones and Helen Twelvetrees in "Hollywood Roundup," completes the Thanksgiving entertainment.

"New Faces of 1937."

A novel back stage plot, sprinkled with action and humorous situations, forms the background for the musical comedy, "New Faces of 1937," opening at the Ritz theater Thursday as a portion of the Thanksgiving program. Joe Penner, Parkyakarkus, Milton Berle, Harriet Hilliard and William Brady head the large cast. "Youth on Parole," the story of how a young couple were framed on a jewelry robbery is the second feature. Marian Marsh and Gordon Oliver head the cast.

State Officials Proposing to Stamp Liquor Bottles.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—As a means of stopping the sale of bootleg liquor in Ohio, State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson and State Treasurer Clarence J. Knisley have proposed that all liquor bear gallonage tax stamps.

The legislature, they said, would have to amend the liquor control act to put the proposal into effect.

Under their plan, each bottle of liquor would bear a stamp representing a fractional part of the $1 gallonage tax. Stamps would be sold by the treasurer direct to the distillers.

Both officials said they believed such a method of stamping each bottle of liquor would reduce bootlegging.

IS YOUR ENGINE AN OIL PUMPER?

MOTOR HI-KLONIC TRADE MARK

Washes the inside of your engine out with hot oil heated 20 degrees above boiling, cleaning carbon and sludge from around piston rings, allowing them to seat against the cylinder walls. Also cleans the carbon off the cylinder head and around the valves, thus increasing compression and reducing oil waste. This also increases gas mileage.

TRADERS AWAIT DIGESTION OF CAPITOL NEWS

Move Cautiously In Quiet Market Supported In Second Hour.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Selling pushed prices lower in early stock market dealings today but support entered near the second hour and losses were shaved or erased in many instances.

Dealings were quiet and the ticker tape was frequently motionless. Few large blocks changed hands.

Traders were cautious pending digestion of news from Washington, where Chairman Douglas of the SEC, warned exchanges they must reorganize or submit to further federal regulation.

President Roosevelt's conversations with utility leaders, regarded by Wall Street as indicating possibility of a "truce" between the companies and the government, had little effect marketwise and the group generally was neglected.

Market students found some cheer in the report of "Iron Age" that, for the first time since the week before Labor day, steel operations in the Chicago area had improved, and that there had been an even greater increase in the Cleveland district. Offsetting this was another sharp decrease in the Pittsburgh output.

The publication reported a slight pickup in railway and construction orders, but a contemplated further scaling down in automobile production in December, with a consequent lesser demand for steel.

RICHLAND GRADS JOIN IN O. S. U. DAY CEREMONY

Annual Meeting Set For Dec. 3 With Member of Faculty as Principal Speaker.

Ohio State day which will be celebrated throughout the country on Friday, Dec. 3, will be observed in Mansfield with the annual meeting of the Ohio State Alumni Association of Richland county at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

The meeting will be one of similar gatherings to be held in cities and towns throughout the nation by alumni groups in observance of the occasion.

The local meeting will be preceded by a banquet in the hotel ballroom with Edison S. Bowers, professor of Economics at Ohio State, as the principal speaker.

Others taking part in the program will be Inwood Smith, former football player at the university and All-American, who will discuss football, and show pictures of last year's Ohio State-Michigan football game. The 1937 state team will be represented by James Miller of Shelby, star halfback. The head cheer leader of the university, Ralph Telfer, will also be on hand to lead the alumni in a number of the university's yells.

Hear Radio Program.

On that evening, an Ohio State program will be broadcast over 65 stations of the Mutual Broadcasting system. A radio will be installed in the ballroom so the Richland county group will be able to hear the program.

Taking part in the broadcast will be the university concert band under the direction of Eugene Weigel, a talk by President George Rightmire, and selections by the glee club, direct from the university campus: Coach Francis Schmidt will speak from Chicago; former student Elliott Nugent will speak from Hollywood: Tommy Riggs with his famous Betty Lou character will speak from New York, and Charles F. Kettering, vice president of General Motors, will talk from Detroit.

Officers of the Richland county group are Herbert R. Slough, president, Mrs. Harry Knox, secretary, and Miss Zoroyda Sheet of Shelby, treasurer.

360,000 EGGS TO GO TO NEEDY

Distribution Will Be Made From Relief Office Today, Friday.

Eggs—360,00 of them—will be distributed to Richland county relief clients today and Friday, according to Miss Mildred Armstrong, county welfare director.

The eggs will be alloted from 8:30 a. m. to 4 p. m. from the relief headquarters at 28 Orange street, and in the City garage, Shelby.

Distribution will be made on the following basis: One dozen to single persons; two dozens to families of four members or less; three dozen to families of five or six members, and four dozen to families of more than seven.

2-WAY RELIEF FOR THE MISERY OF COLDS

The speed with which Bayer tablets act in relieving the distressing symptoms of colds and accompanying sore throat is utterly amazing . . . and the treatment is simple and pleasant. This is all you do. Crush and dissolve three genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets in one-third glass of water. Then gargle with this mixture twice, holding your head well back.

This medicinal gargle will act almost like a local anesthetic on the sore, irritated membrane of your throat. Pain eases promptly; rawness is relieved.

You will say it is remarkable. And the few cents it costs effects a big saving over expensive "throat gargles" and strong medicines. And when you buy, see that you get genuine BAYER ASPIRIN.

AVERAGE TURKEY WILL SERVE 10

Thanksgiving Birds to Be Larger in Size.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The average Thanksgiving turkey is big enough to serve ten persons and give them all second helpings, according to the agriculture department.

The department added apologetically it has not yet attained its goal to producing a strain of smaller-bodied turkeys, just large enough to feed the average American family of four.

A more plentiful supply of grain was held responsible for a slight increase in the size as compared with last year.

CHINA CEASES ACTIVITIES IN SHANGHAI AREA

Compiles With Jap Demands to Halt Functions Over Conquered Sections.

SHANGHAI —(AP)— The Chinese government capitulated to Japanese demands today and prepared to suspend its chief functions in greater Shanghai, including the International Settlement and French concession.

Compliance with the demands resulted from the Japanese threat to use force, if necessary, to end anti-Japanese activities in conquered areas around the city.

It was announced officially that the Chinese city government garrison commanders, headquarters of the martial law bureau, and headquarters of the Shanghai branch of the Kuomintang (Nationalist political party) were suspending all their functions.

Continue to Operate.

Chinese courts in the foreign-controlled but Chinese-owned settlement and concession will continue to operate.

One of the first indications of Japanese domination of the city was the appointment of two Japanese to high posts in the customs service.

(In Tokyo a foreign office spokesman said he had not been informed of details of a request of Lieut. Gen. Iwane Matsui, Japanese commander in chief, for Japanese participation in the administration of the Shanghai postoffice, but believed it "natural" that any commander would demand a measure of control of "any machinery which could be used against him."

(The spokesman said the time had not yet arrived for Japan to announced a policy regarding China's customs. He believed, however, that the Japanese commanders in China do not contemplate permanent measures regarding posts and customs—EMD.)

Meanwhile, continued rains were reported to have held up the Japanese advance on Nanking, the evacuated capital. Last reports said that Japanese forces had fought past Wusih, about 100 miles from Nanking, but that bad weather had slowed them.

Eight Japanese planes bombed the capital for the first time since Sept. 8, killing at least 40 persons, including five children. The bombs, landing in the center of the city, ripped off store fronts, destroyed several homes and tore down telephone and electric lines.

BOY SENTENCED

Sent to Refrom School After Violating Court Parole.

Placed on probation less than two weeks ago in Richland county juvenile court after pleading guilty to a charge of operating an automobile without the owner's consent, James Furness, 17, of Marion county, today was in the Boys' Industrial school at Lancaster for violating his probation.

The youth, who was indicted by the grand jury for an offense committed at Shelby, was placed in the custody of a farmer near his home in Marion county by Probate Judge C. J. Anderson.

Refusing to follow orders on the farm, the youth was brought before Judge Anderson yesterday and sentenced. He was taken to Lancaster by Ralph Carroll, county probation officer.

This Beauty Secret Comes From a Doctor

Most women don't need beauty parlors. Your own doctor will tell you that sallow complexions and pimply skins are rarely matters for cosmetics. Because most skin blemishes are aggravated by constipation.

Dr. F. M. Edwards, during his years of practice, treated hundreds of women for constipation and frequently noted remarkable improvement in their appearance. He used a purely vegetable compound—Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. This laxative is gentle, yet peculiarly effective because it increases the bile flow without shocking the intestinal system. Try Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. All druggists, 15¢, 30¢ and 60¢.

For Chest Colds

Distressing cold in chest or throat, never safe to neglect, generally eases up when soothing, warming Musterole is applied.

Better than a mustard plaster, Musterole gets action because it's NOT just a salve. It's a "counter-irritant"—stimulating, penetrating, and helpful in drawing out local congestion and pain.

Used by millions for 30 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists'. In three strengths: Regular Strength, Children's (mild), and Extra Strong. Approved by Good Housekeeping.

Stuckert, a Republican, was made deputy sheriff in 1928 under the late George Davenport. Following Davenport's death by gunshot at Crestline in 1931, Stuckert retired from the office, but was elected sheriff two years later. He left the office last January.

Dustman said in announcing the appointments that he had made "personal inquiry into their public records and I am convinced that they are highly qualified for the posts to which they have been appointed."

Both directors will take office shortly after January 1.

COURT WEIGHS SALES TAX TEST

State Tribunal Weighs Case Against Clerk on Casual Sale of Autos.

The Ohio Supreme court today had taken under advisement a test case against Fred R. Zellner, Richland county clerk of courts, in which the City Loan company of Lima seeks a ruling as to whether a "casual" sale of used automobiles requires the payment of sales tax.

The action, brought last July by the loan company's Wapakoneta office, was heard at Columbus yesterday, with County Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott representing Zellner. Marriott was unable to say when the court will hand down a decision.

A mandamus action was filed with the supreme court after Zellner refused to issue a bill of sale for a used car sold in Richland county by the plaintiff firm without payment of the sales tax.

The loan company contended that since its busniess is not the sale of automobiles, an occasional sale of a re-possessed car does not require payment of sales tax.

Zellner, who said he was acting under instructions from the state tax commission, referred the plaintiff firm to the local tax commission for a decision. The bill of sale has never been filed with the clerk here, Norman P. Henry, deputy clerk, said today.

FOIL SUICIDE

Guards Find Killer Suspect Hanging In Jail Cell.

LOS LUNAS, N. M —(U.P.)— Wilbur I. Cassidy, Socorro, N. M., business man charged with the mutilation murder of Rose Garcia, grieved today that jailers frustrated his attempt to join in death the 19-year-old servant girl "I was so crazy about."

Prisoners' shrieks attracted jailers to Cassidy's cell last night. The thin-faced 43-year-old father of five was hanging by a cot chain. Officers cut him down just as he lapsed into unconsciousness.

Cassidy recovered in a few minutes and was placed under special guard

"I wanted at least to kiss her goodbye because I was so crazy about her," Cassidy said.

Charges were filed by Ernest J. White, a railroad policeman.

CITIES MAPPING FIGHT AGAINST DAVEY PROGRAM

Draw Plans to Insist Ohio Assembly Approve Relief Fund of 12 Millions.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—City governments of Ohio today were organizing a "united front" to battle in the coming special session of the legislature, opening next Monday, for the $12,000,000 relief program drafted by a legislative joint committee and a committee of the Ohio League of Municipalities.

The league, in session here yesterday, voted to oppose the administration's $7,500,000 relief program that would yield money to cities and counties only when matched equally from local funds. The league charges that the Ohio Chamber of Commerce is backing Governor Davey's program.

Embody Same Plan.

"The findings of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce in regard to relief and needs are those embodied in the governor's plan," Fred W. Ramsey, Cleveland welfare director said.

The two estimates of relief needs, it was charged at the meeting, bare based on actual needs and "factual studies" made by the league's committees, against the chamber's policy based on "false and fradulent data."

"The Ohio Chamber of Commerce has made no investigations on the ground, as far as I know. It is reaching out blindly and gropingly for arguments to support ints opposition to all new taxes," Ramsey said.

"The danger is that the legislature will be led to follow completely false and fraudulent data that has no bearing on conditions as they exist. The legislative committee's plan is based on factual studies. The Ohio chamber"s is not."

In addition to earmarking an estimated $12,000,000 of taxes for relief in 1938, the program advocated by the cities would make a substantial amount available for 1937 relief bills by appropriating various unexpended balances.

To help cities and counties raise the $7,000,000 or more needed to supplement this state distribution, the program calls for reduction from 65 per cent to a bare majority in the vote required to pass special relief and welfare tax levies in local subdivisions. Governor Davey has promised his support in the legislature for this phase of the relief program.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1937.

Business finds it difficult to take a "breathing spell" after being so nearly choked to death.

It appears that the social security reserve is being spent for running expenses—and how those expenses can run!

War toys are said to be in greater demand than ever this year—which is a point for the heredity side of the debate with environment.

Proposals to Advance World Peace.

WHILE Japan's present attack on China reveals the fallacy of a belief that the world is nearing readiness for permanent universal peace, there should be constant encouragement of more general thought along lines intended to advance civilization to the eventual higher plane of maintaining peaceful relations among all nations.

It is interesting, therefore, to consider the proposal of Dr. Charles F. Wishart, president of the College of Wooster, of five ways to mold public opinion against war:

1.—Expose the futility of the notion that nations secure protection from war by a high degree of preparedness.

Dr. Wishart holds that vast armies and expanded navies create a war mind and that prepared nations are soon impelled to use the weapons they have forged.

2.—Organize for peace.

"Is it not tragic that we have a Secretary of War?" he questioned. "Let us call him something else—Secretary of National Defense," he proposed.

"Let us agitate for such a government set-up as would use at least something of the vast sums, which the tax-payer is now giving for armies and navies, to develop the department of our government whose one business it would be to seek out means of maintaining peace among the nations."

3.—Turn the searchlight on the relations between those merchants of death, the manufacturers of munitions and the war policies of various nations.

4.—Frankly face the economic backgrounds of war.

5.—"Finally, give ourselves with utter abandon to the international extension of the Kingdom of God."

These proposals, it is easily recognized, present the sincere thought of a capable educator and a fine man. It may well be regretted that human progress on earth—or even in the United States—has not yet reached an average of honesty and intelligence that will eventually make such procedure practicable.

A Changed Thanksgiving.

EXCEPT as a symbol of what it once was, there appears to be little justification for perpetuation of Thanksgiving day as an annual holiday.

While it still elicits the customary proclamation of president and governor, present methods of observance are so totally different from the original purposes of this autumn holiday that it seems now to serve only as an occasion for feasting and revelry, rather than retaining any of the religious significance that brought it into being.

In those stern days of the early New England colonies, when the pioneers in this new country were thankful for little things, a day of thanksgiving was instituted as an occasion for fasting and prayer, in recognition of divine guidance and aid.

That was a time when there was simple faith in God, and firm belief that a supreme being exerted a considerable influence on the affairs of mankind.

It was a time when sturdy men and courageous women battled their way through the wilderness and knew that they were dependent on their own efforts to supply themselves and their families with the necessities of life.

There was no government in Washington upon which they could call, no stronger arm upon which they could lean. There was only themselves—and their God.

It is upon such a foundation of hard work and firm faith that the America of today was built.

Possibly it is fitting that Thanksgiving day be preserved—in recognition of what it once was, and in hope that it may sometime again reflect its true significance.

Reforms That Are Necessary.

WITH Congress now in special session, engaged in the task of attempting to reconstruct various pieces of hurriedly enacted legislation of other sessions, there are several things on which there can be quite general agreement. For instance:

"Reform is necessary in the sum and modes of Federal Taxation, to the end that capital may be set free from distrust and labor lightly burdened.

"Reform is necessary in the scale of public expense—Federal, state and municipal.

"Reform is necessary in the Civil Service. Experience proves that efficient, economical conduct of the government business is not possible if its civil service be subject to change at every election. . . ."

All of these reforms are necessary—even more necessary at this time than when they were first stated sixty-one years ago in the Democratic platform adopted at the national convention held in St. Louis in June, 1876, when Samuel J. Tilden was Democratic candidate for president.

The above excerpts are from the 745-page "Political Textbook" of 1876, a copy of which recently came into the possession of F. E. Powell, manager of The Bookery.

No Gasoline for Drunks.

DECISION of Mansfield and Richland county gasoline dealers to stop selling gasoline to obviously intoxicated drivers is a move in the direction of greater traffic safety which should be accorded widespread approval.

While withholding of additional gasoline from drunken drivers may go only a small way in lessening this traffic hazard, it at least evidences willingness of dealers to cooperate in a matter of public welfare rather than to be influenced by the profit involved in selling to persons obviously in no condition to drive safely.

A more difficult problem, of course, is presented by the drunken drivers—amply supplied with gasoline—who attempt to operate their cars between 2:30 a. m. and daylight, and who are responsible for a considerable percentage of the early morning crashes.

BE IT EVER SO HUMBLE—!"

Why Congress Disagrees With The President

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Why is it that President Roosevelt, while apparently nearly, if perhaps not quite, as popular as ever among the rank and file of voters throughout the country, has so much trouble with congress?

The answer seems to be that the rank-and-file of voters are "sold" on the president because they have a firm faith in the excellence of his intentions toward them, whereas the economically better educated members of congress look with profound skepticism upon his proposed methods of making his good intentions effective.

An interview I once had with the late Senator Couzens of Michigan told the story.

* * *

ONE VIEW

Couzens, though a Republican, was pro-Roosevelt.

"'F. D.' is the first president we ever had," he said, "who is wholeheartedly in sympathy with the common people."

The Wolverine solon didn't even except George Washington or Thomas Jefferson, and maybe he forgot Abraham Lincoln. "A lot of 'F. D.'s' plans are hopeless," continued the Michigan statesman, "but he means 100 per cent well." Therefore the Republican Couzens was a Rooseveltian—for the sake of the latter's objectives, and regardless of methods or party politics.

But senators and representatives, on an average, quarrel over methods.

* * *

TARIFF ISSUE

For instance, as between tariff protectionists and free traders?

President Roosevelt touched on that issue in his recent Mt. Vernon speech—which he did not deliver, because he had a bad tooth, but which Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace read for him.

As the president remarked (through Secretary Wallace), in George Washington's day American infant industry needed to be protected against foreign competition, and American farmers had no objection, since they could produce only enough to go around at home.

But now American manufacturers can take care of themselves, but American farmers overproduce in world markets.

* * *

FARMERS' NEED

In short, American farmers need free trade (and have needed it for years) to help them to be exporters.

Manufacturers, however, still want protection.

It no longer is international good business, even in their case, but they continue to have that complex.

* * *

NO LONGER INFANTILE

Away back in the early days of tariff protective activity, an anti-protectionist legislator said:

"When the time comes for an infant industry to threaten, 'Do as I dictate or I'll get out of the cradle and kick your head off,' it is overdoing matters."

The idea is that that industry no longer is very infantile.

* * *

ALL CLASH

We have now:

Industry, agriculture and most folk.

They clash.

"F. D." is trying to get them together.

Their representatives hopelessly disagree.

It isn't as to objectives; it's as to methods.

Listen, World!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

For Courage, Faith and Vision They Gave Thanks.

THANKSGIVING DAY—how seldom we stop to think what it really means!

We've glossed that meaning over with giblet gravy and cranberry sauce, turkey and pumpkin pie. But Thanksgiving day wasn't an eating day, at the start. There was a deeper reason behind it—something that should touch us particularly now, in these days of growing tumult and confusion.

A frost-rimmed day—the pale sky heavy with the threat of snow. A few cleared fields—rough stumps still standing in the withered rows. Behind—the massed and masking blackness of the woods. Before—gray boulders and the endless, snarling sea.

And, in the center, shivering round a hand-hewn table and some bowls of food, a few worn people clad in shabby clothes.

We've gilded that scene so gaily, pictured them flocking, radiant and triumphant, to a banquet board. But I wonder how much radiance there really was! They had known dreadful hardships in that year, those simple souls. They had come to their venture poorly prepared—lacking bare necessities, much less luxury—driven out by a degenerate autocracy which hated their austerity.

Those first months had left scars which would never heal. Nightmare suffering . . . pitiful graves. Hunger by day and horror by night . . . and a loneliness that clawed with even crueler fangs than the new world's wilderness beasts. Now, in those circling woods, savage eyes peered, watching their chance. Now, in that stormy sky, there brooded the promise of killing cold.

And yet they were come to give thanks!

For what? A scanty meal bought, literally, at the cost of their lives? An hour of nearness, hedged about with fear? Bitter as the old world life had been, it had offered them more than that!

But they had something which the old world could not give . . . something which no other nation had ever known, no matter how rich or wise or powerful it might be—

THEY HAD A VISION!

They had a vision—born in tears, bought with blood, sealed in sweat—OF SPIRITUAL LIBERTY! A vision of a man's right to be himself and believe in his God, as he and that God saw fit.

THEY HAD A VISION . . . AND BACKING THAT VISION THEY HAD THE FAITH TO FOLLOW WHERE IT CALLED. THE COURAGE TO ENDURE WHATEVER WAS NEEDED FOR ITS ESTABLISHMENT.

Faith . . . Courage . . . and a Vision. For these they gave thanks that day. Yes, they were poor. Lonely. Homeless and afraid. Many were ill . . . many more, dead. We, in our luxurious abundance, would stare with surprise—perhaps sniff in scorn—if we could see that first Thanksgiving table and the ragged, work-worn creatures who stood about it.

Yet there lay on that board the richest and most enduring treasure man has ever known—an invisible sacrament which was to change the course of human life.

And now—another Thanksgiving Day. And though some gorge themselves, there are millions who approach a table as bare as that first board, who face a life as beset with cruelty and injustice, hate and greed.

Yet, for those who have eyes to see, the feast is still set! Still, in spite of our human stupidity, the Vision shines. Still, in spite of our cowardice, Faith flames, Courage fights. We have come far, lost much . . . betrayed and been betrayed . . . but it still may be A THANKSGIVING DAY!

Child Labor Measures.

NOTES that pass over an editorial desk:

"The Vandenberg amendment . . . proposed as a substitute for the pending child labor amendment . . . empowers congress 'to limit and prohibit the employment for hire of persons under 16 years of age'," explains the National Child Labor committee.

"It differs from the pending amendment in that

"a. The word 'regulate' is omitted.

"b. The phrase 'employment for hire' is used instead of labor.

"c. The age minimum is reduced to 16 years.

"The National Child Labor committee does not favor any substitute amendment at the present time. It believes that ratification of the pending child labor amendment should be carried to completion This amendment now has been ratified by 28 states, and requires favorable action by only eight more.

"In addition there are two great weaknesses in the Vandenberg amendment:

"1. The term 'employment for hire' would exclude from protection many types of child workers, such as those laboring in the sugar beet fields and other forms of large scale industrialized agriculture, in industrial home work where they work with adults on a piece-work rate or contract basis and are not technically employed.

"2. By lowering the age to 16 years no protection could be given to older boys and girls employed in hazardous occupations . . .

"That industry generally recognizes the accident risks for young workers is evident from the fact that three-fourths of the industrial codes adopted in 1933 and 1934 contained provisions prohibiting the employment of minors 16 and 17 years of age in hazardous work."

REMEMBER WHAT HAPPENED TO THIS DICTATOR?

An item from the 100 years ago column of the London Times (remember you are reading an item of 1837):

"Lord John Russell proclaims to his hearers that 'in no very long period of years the Tories increased the debt of this country from £250,000,000 to £800,000,000...' England is at this moment better able to bear the annual interest of 800 millions than she was to bear the interest of 250 millions in 1793. But had she truckled to the French tyrant, and given up to his denunciations the sovereignty of the seas, what would she have been able to bear at this moment? What would have been the amount of her revenue—what of her capital—what the nature of her government—where her reform bill now—had she bought a nominal peace with Bonaparte—first by one submission, next by another—first by the tame endurance of one outrage, next of another, until we had nothing left to give away?"

Adds the Times of day: "For Napoleon, too, was a wholesale dealer in 'instalments.' He understood, like subsequent and minor swindlers, how to make one encroachment a stepping-stone to another—how to drive the wedge, the small end foremost."

LOW PRICES PAY.

Although the prices of electricity are at the lowest level on record, revenues for 1937 reach an all-time peak.

The increase in revenue has been steadily upward since the downward trend in electricity prices began in 1932.

GAS PRICES DOWN?

Speaking of prices, the Alexander Hamilton Institute predicts lower gasoline prices in 1938.

A record output of petroleum is predicted for 1937—1,293,000,000 barrels.

Petroleum prices, however, have advanced through the year. The demand for gasoline has been the greatest on record in 1937. But because of the present business recession, that demand will slacken in 1938.

Timely Editorial

Financial Hocus-Pocus.

During the first four months of the current fiscal year the government of the United States has collected 215 million dollars in social security taxes. If anybody imagines that this money has been set aside under lock and key, in a special reserve fund which will accumulate interest over a period of years and enable the government ultimately to pay the benefits which the social security act requires, his faith is based upon a misconception of the facts.

The 215 million dollars has all been spent, for a variety of purposes: perhaps to help build Grand Coulee dam, perhaps to finance WPA projects in street paving, perhaps to pay the salaries of officers in the navy—no one knows precisely, since the dollars that come into the treasury are not so earmarked that they can be identified when they go out again.

As for the reserve fund which is supposed to supply the money needed in future years for the payment of benefits under the social security act: it consists at present only of government I O U's.—New York Times.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER—

Japan and Our Alaskan Islands.

WASHINGTON — One of the things most insisted upon by the Japanese before they would sign the 1922 naval limitations treaty was that the United States should agree not to fortify any of the Alaskan islands.

A couple of years back Japan gave notice that it would no longer adhere to the treaty because it was outrageous to compel a first-line sea-going power like Japan to submit to a 5-5-3 ratio in naval strength when England and the United States were the 5-5 and Japan was the 3.

England and the United States agreed to limp along with the treaty for awhile, after greatly modifying it, but any part of it applying to Japan was out, so that freed this government to do what it would with Alaskan islands.

If you will glance at your map or remember your childhood geography, you will recall the long "finger" of a peninsula that extends from Alaska out into the north Pacific. And on beyond that finger is a string of islands that reaches several hundred miles further.

* * *

Our 'Closed' Harbors

ALMOST on the extreme end of that string of islands is a fairly large one known as Kiska and in it is a secret harbor.

In all its varied possessions, the United States has only five of these secret harbors, which are known to navigators as "closed" harbors. The others are at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba (retained by treaty); Great Harbor, Culebra, adjacent to the Panama canal; Subic bay in the Philippines, also retained by agreement, even when the islands become independent; and Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. No foreign ship of any kind may enter a "closed" harbor, even in time of extreme emergency.

Through all the 14-year life of the Washington naval treaty the government abstained from doing anything for the improvement of Kiska harbor, out on the end of the string of Alaskan islands, but the navy department is becoming interested.

The reason is:

Kiska is only 600 miles from the northernmost Japanese island and only 1,500 miles from Tokyo. That was the reason the Japanese did not want it fortified.

* * *

A Naval Problem

THE navy department insists nothing is being done about putting guns or other defenses in the harbor but during the past two years the navy has sent a cruiser into that vicinity to take a party of weather observers made up from the department and from the weather bureau. Only recently the cruiser Portland returned from taking this year's party.

The tremendous strategic value of Kiska in event of war with Japan is evident even to the unwarlike eye. Seattle is 6,000 miles from Tokyo. A naval base at Kiska would be something else again.

The navy can not officially talk about offensive uses of the island, but it points out its defensive value. Kiska is only a short distance north of the "Great Circle" route to the Orient. Any foreign fleet heading for American shores by the Circle" would come within range of bombing planes from Kiska.

In next year's naval problem in the Pacific, Kiska is one of the key points in the "defense line." The line extends southward 3,000 miles to Hawaii, then southwestward 2,000 miles to Samoa. The problem: To stop an enemy fleet attempting to pass this "line" to get at our west coast.

Thanksgiving

By GEORGE ELLISTON

Thanksgiving! Make the pumpkin pies
And set them in a row.
Pluck clean the turkey, king today,
And let cranberries glow

In sauce, the feast to gladden, while
From far and near they come,
The family; on it is built
The nation's final sum.

And when they gather at the board,
Old fashioned though it be,
Let there arise a prayer of thanks
For the security

That wraps us like a blanket, warm,
Against all want and cold,
And let us ask continued be
Our blessings, manifold.

This, too, our plea: "Lord, grant us peace,
Keep us from conquest's lust,
And that we find in brotherhood
The boon of love and trust."

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

NO ONE has more successfully combined poetry with business than Margaret Fishback. As a highly paid copy writer and executive in a large department store, she also finds time to turn out salable books of poetry from time to time.

O. O. McIntyre

Young, bright-eyed, and with hair the color of pulled taffy, she long poetized her spinsterhood. And then one day in her store she met a rug buyer—of all people—fell in love and married. Her next book of verse had the apologetic title: "I Take it Back."

She was also a confirmed cliff dweller, to whom the city was the only livable place. But that was before her marriage. Her husband took her to a home in the suburbs and now she spends her spare time working in the garden and sighing over leaving it daily for the city.

However, Miss Fishback is not the only successful poet to win fame at a desk in an advertising office. Ogden Nash was dashing off copy for a book publishing concern when between tasks he discovered his jingles were salable. And quit everything to woo the muse.

There are minnesingers to whom verse comes as natural as breathing. Gelett Burgess can walk along the street and sing-song poems of beauty and comedy from the things he sees en passant. The columnist F. P. A. is said to have the most remarkable memory for poetry of all modern bards. Given the first line of any verse from the Oxford collection or the various anthologies, he can complete it. Meredith Nicholson, while better known as an essayist and novelist, is so poetically minded that any beautiful scene will inspire him to murmur his thoughts in rhyme. But only to close friends. Frank Sullivan likes to scurry up Parnassus when nobody is looking, too.

Poetry appreciation begins—like so many good things—for most people at 40. Before that time much of the poetry, save for a few saltier classics of the barrooms when one is a bit maudlin, bored me no end. I don't recall owning a single book of verse. Yet in the past ten years I have read dozens of the poets, old and new, and the majority of my book purchases have been those of poems.

Among the most widely traveled married couples in America are the Watterson Rothackers, who divide their time when in this country largely between New York and Hollywood. Rothacker, as originator of a filming process in the early days of motion pictures, retired, sensible fellow, before reaching 40. His first gesture was to see the world, which he has with his wife circled many times. Since that first swing they have traveled to out-of-way nooks left largely to those who exploit sight-seeing in travelogues.

The young George Vanderbilts with a $300,000 yearly income, have also become thorough-going travelers among the American youngsters. He had made several journeys into the jungles of Africa and Borneo with scientific expeditions before his recent marriage. For a honeymoon trip, he took his bride around the world, and since then their time is spent studying maps for new places to see on the world's outer rim.

I mosey over to Grand Central now and then just to watch a crack train pull out. Several gatemen know I'm a "train nut" and wave me through. There's no transportation thrill to me like the conductor's cry of "Board!" the convulsive jerk and strain of a train getting into motion for its glide off into the fathoms of darkness, the tail light gleaming red. Airplane travel is exciting, but only in the takeoff and landing. A liner voyage is the same calibre—after a few hours only the monotony of vast expanse of water. There's no time on a train when a traveler cannot look out the window and feel the thrill of adventure.

In clearing away old papers today I came upon a memorandum from Ray Long, a great editor, dated June 5, 1923, and worth repeating as a guidepost to young writers. It reads: "That expert critic I told you about says, 'Don't let McIntyre become a pessimist. Let him reserve bitterness for his contemporaries. Tell him what you know is true—that the biggest success comes to writers who are optimistic. Schopenhauer died poor. Heinie in rags, and poverty kept Diogenes in a bath tub'."

WPA UNION ASKS PROBE OF DEATH

Workers Charge 'Supervisory Negligence' In Fatality at Bellville.

bigler said he had informed the union that such matters are handled by the county prosecutor. Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott could not be reached for a statement this morning.

Berno also said the union would demand that workers be permitted to attend Mr. Call's funeral in Shelby Friday, without loss of time or wages and would seek to have a death compensation payment made to Mrs. Call.

Berno charged WPA officials with negligence, asserting they had failed to provide planking in the ditch where Call was working. He claimed the state law required that planking be placed in a ditch where the depth was over four feet. The ditch where Call was working at the time of the fatal accident was six feet deep, he said, and only 30 minutes before lack of planking had been called to the attention of the foreman on the job.

He charged WPA had also failed to provide a safety inspector on the project, which he claimed was contrary to orders from the state headquarters.

Berno also asserted that after Call had been extricated from the ditch by fellow workers, that no first aid kit could be found on the project. The one kit he said was in the car of one of the supervisors who was off the job at the time of the accident.

Call, father of three children, was killed almost instantly shortly before noon yesterday when buried in a cave-in of the ditch in which he was working on the Bellville WPA sewage project

Funeral services for Mr. Call will be held at 2 p. m. Friday at the Sutter funeral home, Shelby, with Rev. Floyd Honchell of the Nazarene church officiating. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

Mr Call was born in Hammondsville, Jefferson county, in 1890. He served overseas in the World war with the 323rd field artillery. He was wounded once, but not seriously.

He returned to Hammondsville at the end of the war, and came to Shelby about eight years ago.

Surviving are his wife, Grace; three children, Dorothy, Donna and William, at home; a sister, Mrs. Mary Travis, near Shelby and two brothers, James of Vernon Junction and Anson of Hammondsville.

SUHR APPEALS FOR PEACE IN BUCYRUS TALK

State Commander Dedicates New Legion Home; Reviews National Program.

BUCYRUS—A plea for continued peace and a declaration that America should not go to war merely to protect American interest in warring nations was made here Tuesday night by James V. Suhr, state commander of the American Legion, in an address dedicating the new American Legion home on East Rensselaer street.

It was Commander Suhr's second visit to Bucyrus in 48 hours. He was here Sunday for a brief appearance before the Fifth district conference, which was the first official meeting in the new home.

Given Warning.

"America," he said, "has told Americans and American interests in warring nations to leave. It is up to them to vacate those countries in which warfare is going on. If they do not they cannot expect America to send men to protect them nor to go to war over their welfare after they have been warned."

He reviewed the Legion's national program and congratulated the local post upon the completion of its new home.

Mrs. Floyd Pfleiderer, president of the auxiliary, also congratulated the post and expressed the hope that the new home would cement further the tie between the Legion and the auxiliary, which will also use the home for a club house and meeting place.

J. D. Sears, attorney, and Legionnaire, presided during the services which were preceded by a parade in which Marion's 40 et 8 organization took part with its auto-locomotive and voltaire freight car. The Upper Sandusky drum corps also marched with local post members.

The new home has been under construction for eight months It is a two story structure housing a club room, a canteen, lounging room, lavatories and a kitchen.
